District Athletics Carnival

Chalcot Lodge was well represented at the District Athletics Carnival on Thursday 17th August. Our students displayed excellent sportsmanship throughout the day and were determined to run, jump and throw to the best of their ability. The persistence and determination of our students paid off as our school came 1st overall.

Congratulations, we are all very proud of you 😊

Thank you to our wonderful teachers Allyson Keay and Melissa Kodogorgos for organising this wonderful experience for the community.

Choir Night

Please note that our annual Choir Night has been postponed. It will now take place on Wednesday 18th October.

Supporting children's social development (Suggestions for parents and carers)

Family relationships and expectations have a major influence on children's social development. The quality of relationship within the family, particularly those between parents, carers and children, sets the foundation for children to relate to others. Children also learn how to manage relationships by observing the ways that parents, carers and other family members relate to others.

How parents and carers can help:

Teach social and emotional skills

Teach children social skills such as listening to others, taking turns, making friends and resolving conflict.

Emphasise skills for cooperative and respectful relationships and acknowledge children's efforts to use them.

Use positive discipline

Setting reasonable expectations for children's behaviour, and communicating them clearly and respectfully, sets the tone for cooperation. Being consistent and positive in your approach to discipline communicates to children that they are valued, even if a particular behaviour is not.

Talk about values

Read stories that emphasise moral values with your children. Ask their opinions on whether they think a particular action is respectful, responsible, caring etc. Discuss the pros and cons of different kinds of values for promoting effective social relationships. Make talking about values and opinions part of everyday conversation, for example by talking about things you see on TV.

Capitalise on 'teachable moments'

When something happens that requires a moral response, it presents a 'teachable moment'. Ask children to think about what the problem is and what they could do to improve the situation. For example, when feelings have been hurt you could ask your child's opinion of what the person might be feeling hurt about. Extend your child's thinking through asking questions like, "How could you find out what Jo is feeling sad about?" and "What do you think you could do to help?"

Involve children in family discussions and decision-making

Encouraging children to contribute to family discussions and decision-making gives them practice in listening to others' views and seeing things from different angles. Listening and contributing to family discussions helps children understand what your values are and shows them that their voices are valued. Involving children in these ways in family discussions and decision-making promotes respectful and responsible behaviours.

Promote a strong sense of identity

When parents and carers notice and acknowledge what children do to help, it shows children that their contributions are worthwhile. This gives them a sense of pride and encourages them to 'do the right thing'. Help children to work out ways to stand up for what they believe in and let them know that you are proud of them when they do. This helps children to build confidence in their own strengths and values.

Supervise media use

When children are repeatedly exposed to violent or inappropriate media images, it encourages them to see these things as normal. Children do imitate the behaviour they see on TV or on the internet. It is very important for parents and carers to supervise children's media use and ensure that the things they view are appropriate for their age and level of understanding.
